AATCC SHARES ITS HISTORY

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C., USA, Thursday, June 10, 2010—A free download of a book detailing the history of AATCC is now available at the Association's website.

AATCC has been serving textile professionals and their companies for nearly 90 years. In that time, the industry and the Association have seen massive changes and experienced significant advances. Now, a detailed history of AATCC and its role in textile technology is available to everyone.

Originally created as a 438-page hard-bound book, Dyeing for a Living explains how and why AATCC was formed. It guides the reader through various transitions within the Association and introduces key individuals.

Download Dyeing for a Living as an indexed, searchable PDF for free. Visit www.aatcc.org/resources/history/history.htm to access the file and other resources.

To make the publication a permanent part of your collections, purchase Dyeing for a Living on CD for only US$29. Visit www.aatcc.org/products and search by title or item #09511A.

Dyeing for a Living is a narrative history of AATCC, beginning with its foundation in 1921. Also included are more than 30 photographs. Six appendices at the end of the work list officers, committees, test methods, sections, award winners, and other data relating to the Association.
